However useful this "flattening out" may be, it transforms the temporal articulation of places into a spatial sequence of points. A graph takes the place of an operation. A reversible sign is substituted for a practice indissociable from particular moments and "opportunities" ... it is thus a mark in place of acts, a relic in place of performances: it is only their remainder, the sign of their erasure.

–Michel de Certeau, The Practice of Everyday Life

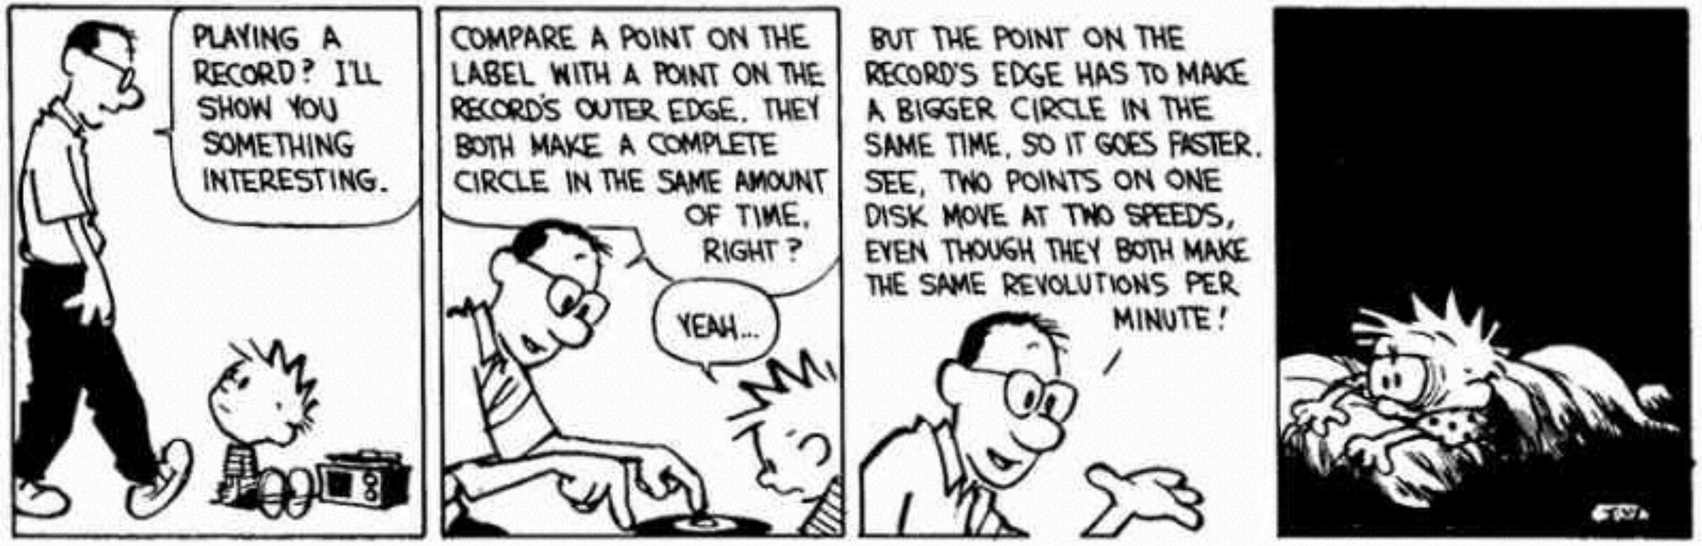
1 day of lived time → 1 rotation
1 rotation at 33⅓ rpm = 1.8 seconds
365 rotations ~= 11 minutes



city → musical key

place → musical interval

More frequently visited places are mapped to more consonant intervals – deviation produces outer harmonies

What I'm interested in is a compositional process and a sounding music that are one and the same thing.

–Steve Reich, Music as a Gradual Process

Musical rhythm ... has an ethical function. In its relation to the body, to time, to the work, it illustrates real (everyday) life.

–Henri Lefebvre, Rhythmanalysis

Through a certain use of time the citizen resists the state ... civil, therefore social, time seeks to and succeeds in withdrawing itself from linear, unirhythmic, measuring/measured state time.

–Henri Lefebvre, Rhythmanalysis

You'll Just Have to Take My Word for It

Bb Tenor Sax

Brian House

The tempo is constant, but the click track must be used to stay in sync with the guitars. The click track counts in for one bar.

Sustain long notes by circular breathing. Changing notes should be played legato. The first section is just minimal movement in C-Lydian (concert).

Visually cue the guitars at the rest in bar 120, where everything changes. From this point, be as expressive as possible, even soulful in a broken, skronky, digital kind of way. Think lite jazz glitch. Extra points for body movements. This section is just runs in a kind of A-blues (concert).

The last note should be held as long as possible with a single breath, trailing off as necessary.

Play dynamics as felt.
